

TRINITY Monuments

THE FAMILY TRADITION CONTINUES

Anna and George Holan established Trinity Monuments with the idea of providing quality workmanship which catered to the unique needs of the Torres Strait and Aboriginal Communities.

It was their desire to be able to meet the families cultural needs in a caring and professional manner, and serve the community with thoughtfulness and understanding.

Their son Attila and daughter-in-law Anna moved to Cairns early last year to join them in the business. Anna and George mentored them, passing on their knowledge and experience.

In November 2011, Anna and George retired leaving the family business in the capable hands of the younger generation. Anna and Attila strive to provide the same level of personal and professional service that they can be proud of.

Anna has a background in graphic design and worked in this area for 10 years before joining the Royal Australian Air Force.

Attila grew up in Cairns attending St Augustines College and later spent 10 years in the SES and working in government and private security services, before leaving Cairns to join the RAAF.

With over 15 years combined in the Australian Defence Force, both having seen active service, they bring to the family business the values instilled in them by the ADF of Loyalty, Integrity, Honesty and Professionalism, as well as the desire to be of service to their community.

The Feher-Holan family are happy to be living in Cairns and raising their children here, while continuing the family tradition of serving the Torres Strait, FNQ as well as the PNG Communities.
