Enterprise Mobile Management (EMM)

The way we access information and communicate with each other has been revolutionized by smartphones and tablets. Organizations are looking to embrace the power of these devices in order to improve productivity and face future challenges.

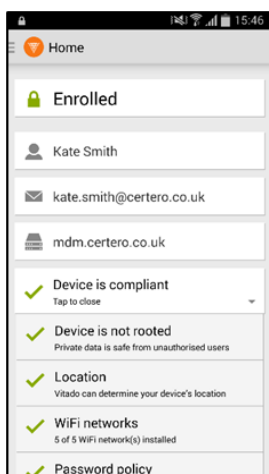

With this growing demand, organizations require EMM to control their physical assets and ensure users have access to the resources required for their role. Security and privacy must also be maintained, with potentially sensitive information reaching far beyond the traditional corporate domain.

An EMM typically consists of mobile device management and mobile application management modules.

Mobile Device Management (MDM)

Vitado's MDM module, enables organizations to centrally manage the challenge of enterprise mobility. It handles enrollment, inventory, deployment, security and the monitoring of all your mobile devices running Windows 10 Mobile, Android and iOS.

Configuring settings such as Wi-Fi networks, VPNs, restrictions and enforcing secure password policies across a fleet of devices is now a simple task.

Mobile Application Management (MAM)

Vitado's MAM handles the delivery and administration of enterprise software to mobile devices. It uses a dedicated app-store that can include necessary workflow and help ensure licence compliance.
